RECORD FOR COACHING CLUB.

EIGHTEEN DRAGS IN LINE AT THE SPRING MEET.

Col. Ja) Leads Off for the Twenty-second Year-Perry Belmont Reappears as a Whip-Younger Set Prominent on rornouts-Women Gay in Spring Colors

It was a great day for four-in-hand drivbig vestorday, for the Coaching Club broke the record that has held since 1884 by a muster of eighteen drags at its spring meet. There was also an unexampled turnout of road coaches loaded with race-

The Coaching Club record had been sixteen, and last year twelve wire in line.
A new place had been selected for the meet and this added to the éplat of the occasion. for instead of hiding away on the West thive, the gathering place was outside certral Park, in Fifth avenue, with the head of the alignment at Sixty-second

This was especially handy for the Gerrys. who live on the Sixty-first street corner, Histor of the clan, in his Coaching Club m iform, stood before his house watching coachmen draw up into their places with the coming of Col. Jay gave carning that it was time to get his own

As Col. Jay pulled up he faced a double whips and their guests, who had assembled see the start, and the sidewalk along the as wall was crowded with pedestrians the way to the Fifty-ninth street entrance. Some nimble photographers were are stapping their cameras at the drag although they said it was ... a, the whips and their passengers ariably looked straight at the enses

The happiest persons while the formation was in order, however, were the passengers on top of the few Fifth avenue stages that past. They were higher up in the air than the ceaching folks, and, for a five cent fare, could look down on the millionaire whips and inspect everything at

Peter Goelet Gerry, after the delay of his casual inspections, was the last to pass Col. Jay from downtown, but he was in his place shortly before 11 o clock, the scheduled hour to start. As it happened, nearly all of the whips coming from that direction had made a detour through the East Drive to drop into line from uptown, and, as Col. Jay did not know this, he allowed a few

"Fine every whip $10 who is late!" called out Robert L. Gerry, who was second in

Col. Jay still sat impassive until ten minutes past the hour. Then, shifting reins and whip to the right hand, he pulled off his left glove deliberately and pushed the hand deep down into the trouser pocket. A watch was haule I out and consulted. Then, as soon as he had the glove on and the reins straightened out, the Colonel said over his shoulder: "All ready back there?" and started up his team.

Robert L. Gerry followed suit, then H. P. McKean, the Philadelphian, and the rest, with about two lengths of a coach and team, say eighty feet, between the turnouts. W. C. Gulliver, on his spick and span green drag, closed the line. As secretary, he was filling the place of the vicetary, he was filling the place of the vice-president, Reginald W. Rives, as whipper-in to the procession.

There was a cheering waving of salutations from the carriages and the side-walks along Fifth avenue, and it was the same after the turn into Central Park. After leaving the Mall the turn to the West Drive was taken to the circle at 108th street, where there was a countermarch, so that the whips might see each other's coaches and pass President Jay for review. Instead of merely saluting wit the whip, the coachmen doffed their hats as they drove by, and, although it is no easy trick to hold the reins and whip and still have a hand to spare for the hat, no mistakes were made.

were made.

The whips all wore the uniform of the Coaching Club, or if the two Philadelphians did not, the coat of their Four-in-Hand Club is precisely the same—a three-button cutaway of dark green, with gilt buttons. The waistcoats were single-breasted, of gold and black stripes, while the trousers were mostly of a gray shade. The rumor that the whips were to resume the white top hats of fifteen years or so ago proved to be untrue. Ordinary silk hats were worn, and they were not of the same block or vintage.

Men passengers were black-coated and silk-hatted, as though they had stepped out of the same bandbox. Fashion, however, had ordained that the women should wear light colors in dresses and hats, so that the coach tops were as bright as the tulp beds.

that the coach tops were as bright as the tulip beds.

Mrs. Jay, who had the box seat on her husband's coach, and Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry, who had the same place on Robert L. Gerry's drag, were in gray. Otherwise the women wore mostly gay and brighter hues. The wearing of flowers by the women to match the coach colors added to the picturesque effect. The color of the quarter panels, the door and the panel of the hind boot, is the color to be matched, not the running gear, so that jonquis were carried by the Jay party, the same flowers decking the horse's heads, while the Belmont flowers were Jacqueminot roses, and violets, pinks and chrysanthemums had each an cuting.

pinks and chrysanthemums had each an outing.

The Coaching Club rule is that only a front load shall be carried at the meets, which means a maximum of five guests besides the whip, one on the box seat and four on the next seat, while the second seat must be empty and the backs turned down. Two grooms in plain livery were on the rumble, also a matter of regulation.

R. L. Gerry drove for his fourth successive year, but, barring Col. Jay, none of the others had been out more than twice before, although perhaps members for some years. Four made a first appearance, Messrs, E. B. Smith, Talmage, Cromwell and Jennings.

Jennings.

Col. Jay's record stamps him the dean of American, if not English, whips. He has been president of the Coaching Club since its start, in 1875, and he led the line on the first parade in 1876. Allowing for the blank years, yesterday was the twenty-second year that Col. Jay has marshalled the whips in the parade. The whips and their outfits yesterday were:

After the review, the rarade passed by way of the West Drive to the 190th street entrance to the park. The number of extra teams awaiting here made Seventh avanue appear like a stage for the change of horses of a road coach. A number of the whips put on fresh teams for the drive to Morris Park, where the whips and their guests had luncheon on the lawn of the Turf and Field Club before the races.

As for the road coaches, the Pioneer passed up the East Drive of Central Park on the run to the Ardsley Club while the Coaching Club whips were awaiting the start, the guard of the Pioneer sounding a salute or his horn just as Col. Jay gave the word. The race coaches did not begin to pass through Central Park until an hour after the Coaching Club parade passed out of the 110th street entrance.

The onlookers who waited saw a contrast between the sporty teams and outfits of the road coaches and the comparatively demure turnouts of the Coaching Club. Although the teams in the parade had the most action and quality, the blaring horns of the guards and the jaunty coats and hats of the coaches included the Venture, Good Times, Reliance and Squadron.

PRINCETON AND COLUMBIA AGAIN

and $5.00

Both Princeton and Columbia again won their matches on the Metropolitan Golf Association links yesterday, the first named team from Englewood, aided largely by the runaway victory of one member, and the second from the Richmond Hill players. Each of the college teams has now three straight wins without a defeat. There were seven on a team at the Englewood Golf Club and the prowess of Sinclair enabled the Princetonians to win in spite of the loss of four of the single contests. The course was officially measured on Friday and as played yesterday was 6,200 yards, long enough to suit anybody, and all but four of the summer greens were in commission. Abram Poole, Jr., lost to the former Princton captain, Griswold: Baker lost to Moore, Capillin to Year, and Gree to Murray, and Conklin to Keep and Gee to Murray, and, while both Reinhart and Olyphant were up, the Englewood team had a lead of two holes until the Sinclair and Baylis match came in. Baylis is one of the club's strongest players, and, as Sinclair was beaten 5 up at Baltusrol a week ago by Morrow, the Engle-wood folks did not expect a Waterloo. Sin-clair, however, made an 83, practically the record for the new course, and was no less record for the new course, and was no less than 11 up. It was then recalled that Morrow, who had been 1 down at the turn, came home in 38. The score:

At the Richmond Hill Golf Club the fine greens proved to be much to the liking of the Columbia boys and Griffin was the only home player to score, although Man and Hunt earned halves. The results:

Word has been received by Harold G. Hartwell, captain of St. Paul's of Garden City, regarding the prospects of a Boston entry in the interacholastic golf tournament, to be held at the Nassau Country Club, May 16, 17 and 18, There is a regular organization of the Boston schoolboys, but the New York tournament, while open to all, is managed by one of the schools, Curler having run off the former and St. Paul's having charge of the present one. It is apparent that the only answer the New York boys could make to the Boston challenge for a team match was to invite them to come on and play at Nassau. The situation at Boston is expressed by Templeton Briggs, who is president of the Boston Interscholastic Golf Association, in a letter to Capt Hartwell.

"I may possibly enter at Nassau with Percival Gilbert, our champion, but even this is doubtful, and I fear that none of us will be able to get away on May 16. I may add that if a match is to be arranged between the interscholastic players of Boston and New York the date would have to be after July 2, as the Harvard entrance examinations do not close until then.

The New York boys will talk over the match at Nassau on the lines suggested in the letter. Although the entries do not close until Monday, Capt. Hartwell has received a number of names and many promises. One entry is from Fred Herreschof, whose good game has been noted recently in The Sun, but Hill School, at Pottstown, Pa., which he attends, has voted not to send

The local team lost by 5 to 6, although the Bay Side players won three of the five matches, but the aggregate of the trio was not enough to counterbalance the playing of William L. Hicks and T. D. An all day reception was on yesterday at the Cranford Golf Club, the feature being a thirty-six hole exhibition by Will Anderson, the open champion, who played against the best ball of different members in the morning and afternoon. There was a large attendance of the members, and, although Anderson was weak in putting, he beat the former record, Travis's 84, on each round. The double round was of 8,710 yards, the longest eighteen holes in the East. Anderson's

BRITT SIDETRACKS TERRY. Californian Insists That Young Corbett Shall Be His Next Opponent.

There will be no fight between Jimmy Britt and Terry McGovern, at least for the present. Britt has decided on this, and is determined to stick to it. Britt and Sam Harris, McGovern's manager, had a long talk at a downtown office yesterday and in the end Britt declared that his next opponent would be Young Corbett, unless the latter decides otherwise.
"When I arrived in New York," said Britt,

"I said that Young Corbett would receive the first chance against me, if he wanted at. I also said that I would not be able to it. I also said that I would not be able to fight for at least four months to come and I meant it. I had to make this resolution on account of my arm, which I injured in the mill with Corbett, and which by the way, is not entirely on the mend. If McGovern wants a fight he will have to wait. I have stranged my plans and I do not intend to change them to suit him or any one else."

Harris told Britt that Terry would not wait until Britt got good and ready. He added that McGovern was prepared to go into the ring with Britt about the latter part of July, and if Britt did not care to do business then McGovern would seek a fight elsewhere. So all negotiations were declared off.

Harvard Wins Intercollegiate Shoot. NEW HAVEN, May 7 .- Harvard won the New Haven, May 7.—Harvard won the intercollegiate shoot here to-day and Marsallis equalled the intercollegiate record, breaking 47 out of a possible 50. The Harvard team fell off from its work of yesterday, but still won by a comfortable margin. Princeton was second, Yale, third, and Pennsylvania, fourth. Each man shot at fifty pigeons at unknown angles. The wind was fairly high and interfered somewhat with the shooting. Other high scores were made by Foster, Munn and Thompson.

M'LANAHAN'S GREAT VAULT. Tale Athlete Makes World's Record of 12

Feet 1-2 Inch-Princeton Beaten. New HAVEN, May 7.—Yale overwhelmed Princeson to-day in the dual meet by the score of 77 to 27. The weather conditions were almost ideal except for a slight wind that hindered the runners in the back stretch. Some remarkable performances took place. McLanahan of Yale won the pole vault at 11 feet 31/2 inches and then placed the bar in a try for a record. He vaulted and cleared easily 12 feet 1/2 inch, a new world's record. To insure careful measurement the officials took up the vaulting board, so that McLana-Trainer. han was unable to jump again. Trainer Murphy said McLanahan would have cleared 12 feet 3 inches easily. Parsons won the half from Adsit in a bruising finish in the good time of 1 minute 59 2-5 seconds. Will ams of Princeton won the mile in 4 minutes 31 2-5 seconds, closely contested by Olcott. DeWitt threw the hanmer 164 feet and Glass put the shot 46 feet 3½ inches.

NOT LIKELY TO FIGHT.

Young Corbett Will Not Box in England Unless He Gets Purse of $10,000.

It is not likely that Young Corbett will do any fighting on his present trip abroad unless some of the clubs see fit to give him more money than they have offered already. When Corbett left this country for England he said that he would not fight unless he received a very enticing offer. When he arrived in London he was met by the manager of Ben Jordan, who, after being introduced wanted to know if Corbett would tackle Ben in a fifteen three-minute rounds bout wanted to know if Corbett would tackle
Ben in a fifteen three-minute rounds bout before the National Sporting Club, London, on Derby night, which is supposed to mark the end of the boxing season in London.
Corbett said he was willing to give Jordan a match provided one of the clubs would make it worth while by hanging up a good purse.
Jordan's representative then went ahead and sought A. F. Bettinson, matchmaker of the National Sporting Club, and inquired of the latter how much money he would give for a bout between Jordan and the American. Bettinson, after some deliberation, said that he would give the pair a purse of $8.000.
Jordan's manager thought this rather liberal compared with the size of the purses that prevail in England at present and forthwith accepted. Then he hurried to Corbett to secure his consent, but was met with a prompt refusal by the former champion.
"Three thousand dollars, did you say?"
repeated Corbett. "Why, that would not pay my training expenses. Why, I can make that much in Philadelphia or Chicago in a six-round bout. Tell Mr. Bettinson that I appreciate his offer, but he will have to do bester before I make up my mind to accept."

Bettinson then raised the purse $500 more that I appreciate his offer, but he will have to do better before I make up my mind to accept."

Bettinson then raised the purse $500 more, but Corbett said he would not consider an offer lower than $10,000, and consequently negotiations came to an end then and there. The noted English organization has not given a purse of that smount since Peter Jackson and Paddy Slavin fought their memorable battle about twelve years ago.

Corbett told Bettinson that as he has not really come to England to fight, but to enjoy himself, he could afford to reject a small or large purse as he saw fit. He hoped to appear at one of the clubs, he said, before he returned to America, just to show the Englishmen his form. But he added he did not think he could conscientiously do this unless the clubs concluded to make it worth the while. Corbett, after his stay in England, intends to visit France, where he has received an enticing offer to appear in a boxing stunt in Paris.
